As the crisp autumn air rolls into Alabama and the South, many of us look forward to cooler temperatures and the beautiful fall colors.

But with seasonal changes come the challenges of allergies and illnesses. The fluctuating southern weather, combined with an increase in pollen and mold, can contribute to a spike in seasonal allergies and respiratory issues.

At GoldenPoint Scientific Laboratory, we work closely with clinical practitioners to provide accurate testing that helps diagnose and manage seasonal ailments. Our lab supports health care providers with fast, reliable results, ensuring patients receive the care they need to stay healthy during this time of year. We're committed to partnering with health care initiatives that improve patient outcomes, especially as seasonal sicknesses ramp up.

Stay healthy and enjoy the season!
