When it comes to Laboratory Information Systems Software Integration, GoldenPoint Lab Solutions sets the gold standard.

We understand that the healthcare landscape is evolving rapidly, and the need for efficient, real-time data exchange between laboratories and healthcare providers is paramount. Thatâ€™s why we offer a range of options to seamlessly integrate specimen orders with our lab partners.

Bidirectional Interfaces for Effortless Communication

At GoldenPoint Scientific Labs, we leverage bidirectional interfaces to streamline the exchange of critical information. This advanced technology allows us to push orders alongside requisition and patient documents directly to our lab partners. This ensures that the necessary tests are initiated promptly, with all relevant information readily available.

Real-Time Results for Informed Healthcare

But our commitment to integration doesnâ€™t stop there. We prioritize real-time data access for healthcare professionals. As soon as the lab completes the tests, the results are seamlessly made available in our Electronic Medical Records (EMR) system. This means that doctors can access vital patient information just in time for the next consultation appointment. This immediate access to lab results empowers healthcare providers to make well-informed decisions, ultimately enhancing patient care.
